Thornbury Butterflyway Project Sandra Whitehead

"Retired" canoes filled with soil, native wildflowers and shrubs add colour and feed local bees and butterflies. They are also a playful nod to long-buried lost streams and rivers that run through neighborhoods and a thought that the canoes would eventually "go back to the soil."

"The Woods" condominium in Applejack got behind the project, a committee was formed and now there is a David Suzuki Butterflyway, and Pollinator Garden located in the central area of the Condo property. The canoe was donated by one of the residents. A wonderful bench was donated from a tree cut down in Duncan.

The plants – bee pollinators and butterfly perennials and a few flowering annuals and the river rocks surrounding the canoe all form an essential part of the garden.

The Canoe Garden now has an official designation from TBM Pollinators and will join with several other similar gardens in the Thornbury/Clarksburg area.

Residents joined together to toast the garden with a glass of prosecco on June 12, 2022. And so, it came to be.....

Sugar Maple Trees Available To TBM Residents

TreeTrust TBM has organized a program to offer cost-subsidized sugar maple trees for residents to plant on their properties.

TreeTrust was able to purchase 50 four-foot sugar maple saplings from a wholesale nursery, with the support of a 2021 grant from the TBM Environmental Sustainability Fund. The saplings are in three-gallon pots, ready to plant, and can be purchased for $50 each. This very affordable price allows TreeTrust TBM to cover the purchase price of the trees and recoup the original funding for future tree-programming efforts.

If you are a resident of the Town of the Blue Mountains and you would like to purchase a sugar maple tree to plant on your property please contact csadmin@thebluemountains.ca to register your interest. You will be contacted by TreeTrust TBM with further details.

Tree Trust TBM is a charitable organization that collects and applies donated funds to maintain and extend the lives of significant legacy trees and grow new generations of trees in TBM.

Youth are tackling climate change and plastic pollution with the Coastal Conservation Youth Corps program

The Lake Huron Coastal Centre (LHCC) is encouraging youth ages 14 to 18 to join their Coastal Conservation Youth Corps program (CCYC) in Goderich and Port Elgin this July, August, and September. The free outdoor education program uses Lake Huron as a classroom to teach youth about coastal ecology, helping them learn new skills in the field while earning up to 30 volunteer hours towards their high school diploma requirements.

The CCYC program provides youth with an opportunity to learn about topics such as coastal processes, water quality, aquatic ecosystems, low-impact design and development, shoreline history, and coastal economies. Participants gain valuable experience with stewardship activities, like dune restoration, plant species identification, invasive plant removal, shoreline clean-ups, microplastic testing, and community planning.

Although Week 1 is full, some spaces are available July 18-22 and 25-29 in Saugeen Shores. In Goderich the sessions are August 8-12 and in the fall over a pair of weekends September 17/18 and October 1/2. Interested participants can register or learn more at www.lakehuron.ca/ccyc.

Coastal Education Technician and ecology expert, Kerry Kennedy, will teach participants the practical skills commonly used by local environmental practitioners that help enhance shoreline resilience and reduce the impacts of climate change. She says that "Many threats to the health of our water and shoreline such as temperature and plastic pollution are trending upward, which can be confusing and scary at times. Participating in the CCYC can be the first step in preparing youth with the skills and knowledge to care for our ever-changing environment".

Primary funding support for the program comes from the Ontario Trillium Foundation (OTF), an agency of the Government of Ontario, and one of Canada's leading granting foundations.

The Lake Huron Coastal Centre is a non-governmental charity dedicated to supporting a healthy coastal ecosystem through education, restoration, and research. To learn more, visit www.lakehuron.ca, or follow them on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram

Regional report on Affordable housing

A group of interested citizens spent almost a year studying the issue of affordable housing in South Georgian Bay and are now sharing what they've learned.

The regional task force, which included politicians, agency representatives and housing advocates, first collected data and then interviewed representatives from planning, development, construction and the County to learn more about possibilities, innovation and potential solutions. One of the things they learned is that the issue is highly complex with no easy fixes.

"We need to start by understanding the problem," said Chairperson, Marg Scheben-Edey. She said they discovered that few communities in the region have collected appropriate data and have not set targets to meet the needs in our local communities. For example, they learned that renters on average, learn half of what homeowners do and this is significant when targeting rental rates. According to the 2016 census, the median household income in South Georgian Bay was $62,671 however, when broken down, homeowner household earned over $76,000 while renter households earned less than $40,000. They also learned that over 5500 households in the region were in core housing need meaning that they were spending more than the accepted 30% of gross household income on shelter or, were in inadequate or unsuitable housing.

Another significant finding is that the area is losing affordable housing units far faster than it is able to create them. While studies have shown that in Canada, 15 units are lost for every one created, Scheben-Edey says the ratio is far higher here. Gentrification, vacancy decontrol, demolitions and the strong real estate market have led to the loss of multiple units in apartment buildings, rooming houses and single-family homes with almost no new affordable units created to replace them.

The task force engaged over 400 people in a public survey on the topic and the responses were concerning. 63% of respondents said they would move out of the area if affordable housing were unavailable. A number of respondents suggested suicide would be an option. Of those receiving government assistance, those who collected CPP and/or OAS topped the list.

Other key findings in the report include:

- Intensification and adding supply do not in themselves create affordable housing unless there are policies tied to affordability and increased supply.
- The most urgent need is for rental housing
- Affordable housing is not social housing which generally confuses the public. Complete communities have housing for all which is based on households not spending more than 30% of gross household income on shelter costs regardless of their income level.
- Municipalities are important stakeholders. Counties deal with supportive housing but municipalities have tools that could and should be used to facilitate the creation of housing that is affordable to its residents.
- Housing for all is a critical component of a sustainable community future. If we can't house people, there are consequences such as the loss of our labour force and businesses, increased physical and mental health impacts and increased food insecurity

"Affordable Housing is very much an economic development issue as well as one of equity and inclusion," said Scheben-Edey. "Safe, secure and affordable housing for all is a human right yet we are failing to provide it."

The report states that all stakeholders, from all levels of government to not-for-profit agencies and the private sector have a role to play. As a start, the report includes a toolkit that municipalities can use to help tackle the problem.

The task force is presenting its findings to local municipalities over the next month with the recommendations that those who have not already done so, should establish an affordable housing committee in their town to collect and analyze data, set targets, develop housing master plans and make appropriate recommendations to their local council on positive actions that can be taken. They also hope that a regional committee can be set up to share learnings and resources. A full copy of the report can be found on The Institute of Southern Georgian Bay website at <https://tisgb.com/newsletter/the-regional-housing-task-forces-latest-report-on-affordable-housing/>

Soaring gas prices stall summer road trips

Drivers can ease their pain at the pumps by checking tire inflation monthly and modifying their driving habits. Proper tire inflation and maintenance improve fuel economy, enhance safety, performance and longevity while protecting the environment.

Impact of Tire Pressure on Fuel Economy

Industry studies show motorists can improve their gas mileage by 0.6 per cent on average – up to 3 per cent in some cases – simply by keeping their tires inflated to the vehicle manufacturer's recommended pressure. Additionally, underinflated tires can lower gas mileage by about 0.2 per cent for each one PSI drop in the average pressure of all tires. Driving a vehicle with just one tire underinflated by 56 kPa (8 psi) can increase vehicle fuel consumption by four per cent.

$490 million wasted on fuel

According to Statistics Canada, in 2019 Canadians purchased 43 billion litres of gasoline. With a 0.6 per cent gas mileage improvement resulting from proper tire inflation, drivers would have avoided having to buy 258 million litres of gasoline and saved about $490 million. Saving this much gasoline would also avoid the release of 593,000 metric tonnes of CO₂ into the atmosphere, which equals the emissions of 125,000 vehicles in a year. (Based on $1.90 per litre fuel cost between January and April 2022, and one litre of gasoline producing 2.3 kilograms of CO₂)

Tire and Rubber Assoc of Canada encourages drivers to learn more about maximizing the fuel efficiency and performance of their tires by visiting <https://traCanada.ca/consumers/>.

Four easy steps to measure tire pressure correctly:

Step One - Find the recommended inflation pressure for your tires on the vehicle placard, which is commonly located on the driver's door jamb. If you can't find it, check the owner's manual for its location.

Step Two - Remember to only measure pressure when the tires are cold. If you have been driving more than two kilometers, wait three hours before measuring.

Step Three - Use a tire gauge when measuring pressure. Remove the cap from the valve stem, press the tire gauge onto the valve and take the pressure reading.

Step Four - Add air until the recommended air pressure is achieved. If you overfill the tire, release air by pushing on the metal stem in the centre of the valve, then re-check the pressure.
